Bal Vihar Program

Kayla A. Patel, 4th Grade/Aakash A

9/23/2012: Today's first regular session kicked off with Lataji's lecture on how God is everywhere and that there is a third eye in our mind. She mentioned a story in this regard. After the story, we recited chants, slokas, and a prayer. Finally at the end of the session we saw a magician from India named Kruti Parekh. She was an awesome magician! She did a disc trick, and tissue paper eating trick. She even could see through a blindfold and copy words, sentences, numbers, and things from different languages. Wow!!!

10/14/2012: This session started again with the new format where Lataji Auntie gave a lecture and then we had yoga and class. She talked about the Hindu festival known as Navaratri for the worship of the Goddess Durga through Garba, a traditional Indian folk dance. In Sanskrit, "Nava" means nine and "ratri" means night. Therefore Navaratri is the "Nine Nights of Prayer." Lataji told us that we pray at night because everything we see goes to sleep and then we can enjoy the bliss of quiet. When we do the Garba, we start with "Thron Tali" or three clap dance. We dance and we forget everything else and remember the three Goddesses: Durga, Saraswati, and Lakshmi. Durga is the mother of the universe and helps us overcome our problems. Saraswati represents knowledge and finally Lakshmi represents wealth. The final and tenth night is called Dushera the day Lord Rama defeated the demon Ravana. I look forward to dancing; hope you do too!

From the desk of ITA President

Dear Members,

It is my pleasure to announce to every one of ITA's members that The ITA General Body will meet on December 9th 2012, for the purpose of holding our General Body meeting and Elections for Trustees. With the exception of our religious gatherings, this is – without question -- the most important gathering of the year. There will be a music program before the elections, followed by a dinner sponsored by the current Board of Trustees. Following the music, I – as the Chairman of the current Board of Trustees will provide a "State of the Association" message. This report will take you through the most important activities and actions that the Board and Association took this past year and provide you some insights into our plans for the future. Following my report, our treasurer, Harshad Patel, will present a report on the financial status of your Association.

Our most fundamental object for this meeting is to make each and every member an informed and involved member of our association – that is to say to feel a part of the Association and involved in its future. And, from our informed congregation, we would like to see new leadership emerge to blend with the current leadership in order to instill new energy and new Ideas into our strategic direction. So, we're asking each of you who have not – thus far – been involved in the Temple activities to get involved and lend your intellect and energy to make a difference in our Temple and its future. Our Temple is always looking for new leadership and new contributors with new ideas and new energy for our Association.

Sincerely,
Rina Patel

Indian Cultural Center Now we have roof over our head!

During the last Sunday's ICC visit, Mr. Shailesh Chowdhury elatedly said "Finally we have roof over our head!". Yes, after the steel beams are in place, the bolt tightened and the field soldering is done, we will have roof over our long-awaited Indian Cultural Center. This week, the metal framing has begun and in next few weeks we will be finishing all the framing. This will pave the way for the closing of the building before the beginning of the winter. With the building closed, our contractors will be able to work all through the Winter inside the building and – as a consequence -- we are on track to complete the construction of the Center in the Spring and open the doors of our own magnificent new Cultural Center for our Indian Community.

That brings us to the financing part of our project. Thankfully, we have reached halfway to our goal of raising 4 million dollars for the construction of this building. Looking ahead, we have acquired and soon will have to tap into interest-bearing stop-gap financing so that construction does not slow down or stop for lack of funds. At this critical juncture, it is critical for everyone to do your part and pledge an additional donation or fulfill any fulfilled pledges so we do not rely on expensive interest-bearing advances to proceed. If you have already donated, we thank you profusely and kindly request you to consider adding to those donations. In addition, please help us to spread the word and talk to your friends, family and neighbors to come on board, dig deep, and donate to complete our center.

We invite everyone to visit the site every Sunday, from 11AM to Noon (weather permitting) and witness the construction progress. Also, please continue to visit our website www.iccofsj.org to monitor the progress of this project.

Youth Program

By Sona Dadhania, 9th Grade

On October 14th, the youth embarked on their annual field trip, and this year, the youth traveled to the Philadelphia Museum of Art in order to study ancient Indian art and sculptures on display there. Around 10 AM, the youth departed from the Temple on a bus with many parents, and once we got there, the youth split into groups of 5 or 6 with an adult to explore the museum itself. Once inside, the youth were able to see many spectacular pieces, such as sculptures of various deities and depictions of many gods, such as Vishnu and Buddha. The most prominent Indian exhibit in the museum is the Temple recreation, which took actual pieces from an ancient temple in South India and then recreated the temple with all of the original pillars and wall pieces; it was a sight to see as it is something that is thousands of years old, and yet is still in pristine condition. We connected our youth studies with the artwork and sculptures, which made this a very fun and educational experience for us. With some of the extra time, we were also able to explore other sections such as East Asian art, Medieval European Art, and European Armory. Afterwards, the youth and parents sat down for a nice lunch in the beautiful gardens opposite the Museum. Eventually, our great day had to come to an end and we returned to the Mandir. All the youth would like to thank the parents and volunteers for helping to create such a wonderful experience for all of us, including some Bal Vihar siblings. Thank you so much, and we look forward to next year's field trip!

International Day Celebration

ITA's participation International Day Celebrations reflect its desire to be part of the bigger fabric of our country's cultural life. By our presence there, we not only showcased Indian culture, but, by osmosis and active participation imbibed the culture of many different nations -- including Japanese, Chinese, Russian, Philippines, Pakistani or indigenous American. The person-to-person contact with other ethnic groups enriched our communities global experiences. We were able to savor the cuisines of many nations, through exposure to their dances, music, folk songs and heard their leaders speak. All this made for an afternoon of fun, frolic and enjoyment with family and friends.

"The program began with a parade of flags and participants in international costumes, followed by invocations. Gwen De Vera was the dynamic chairperson of the event. In attendance were many officials of Camden County including Voorhees mayor Mike Mignogna.

Our communities participation came in the form of dance performances by several groups and food donations by Indian restaurants from this area. Dance performances came from the following groups:

Madhu Gupta and her daughter Arti gave a rendition of a diya dance. Kathak was presented by Abhilasha Choudhary's dance academy Classical Rhythms. Performers were Isha Zaveri, Maya Shanker, and Arya Amaro. Marathi Saad organization delighted with the traditional "LAVNI". Contributors were Sumedha Nadkarni, Kavita Lade, Sona Karnik, Shilpa Metkar and Pallavi Saoji. Even though they came prepared, the Bhangra Group could not perform due to time constraints.

Indian food and delicacies were served by two area restaurants-Palace of Asia and Gagan Palace. ITA's effort was spearheaded by Dr. Sunder Mansukhani and San-geeta Rashatwar.

I look forward to seeing the International Day Celebrations again next year. I know they will be even bigger and better.

Karva Chowth Celebration

Friday, November 2nd, 4:00 PM and 7:00 PM

A GauriGanapati puja for the long, married happy life for the couples to be performed at the mandir on the occasion of Karva Chauth - celebration.

In India, the ritual of marriage is considered to be the ultimate ritual of life. Here tying knots means promising a companionship of seven lives. In a country with intricate rituals and customs, it is believed that there is nothing more pious and stronger than the relationship of marriage. Married women are said to be the companion of their better halves in all the good as well as bad days. According to the ancient Hindu texts, the will power of a married lady to change her husband's bad fortune into good is so strong that it can even change God's ultimate decision. So, the relationship of man and his lady are eternal and blessed.

Karwa Chauth is a very difficult fast. A woman has to spend an entire day without any food or single drop of water till the moon rise. It is said that this pain taken by a wife helps her husband get a token of blessings by the almighty. There are different stories to why this festival came into being. Some people believe that this festival of Karva Chauth was actually the day to celebrate the season of autumn and enjoy the company of friends and relatives but later on, few mythological legends were associated with it to give it a religious existence.

However, thousands of people especially Hindus and Sikh of north-western India who believe in its religious existence have several folklores related to this festival. They often associate it with the legendary story of a devoted wife (Pativrata Nari), Karwa and her efforts to save her husband's life. They also quote the story of Satyavan and Savitri, the couple who united again despite being destined to be separated due to Savitri's efforts to save Satyavan's life from Yamdoota, the God of death.

ITA Scholarship: Fifth Prize Winner's Essay — Ms. Unnati Amin

Do We Really Need A God?

“Why?”, “Why does that happen?”

As a child much to my teacher's chagrin, these two questions have always been on the tip of my tongue. Throughout elementary and middle school, I had never been given a sufficient response to the question. It took all of my teachers' restraint to not roll their eyes when I asked this question for the umpteenth times. Eventually both they and I became accustomed to dismissing this question of “Why?” especially when they were teaching a science based topic. During the latter part of my middle school career, I buried the question, “Why?” understanding the teacher had no better answer than I had. I would not be until my sophomore year in high school when I grabbed a shovel and dug the question back up.

My sophomore year in high school, my most difficult and interesting class was Advance Honors Chemistry. Every day in chemistry seemed to be a new adventure of atoms with Mr. Harrison narrating us through a new complicated story. It took me almost half a year to ask him the question I had been dying to since first grade. When I finally asked him, “Why do electron particles behave this way?”, I was surprised by the answer.

Instead condescendingly dismissing my question, he instead replied with his quirky sense of humor, “You will have to ask the big man in your religion. If you ever find an answer, let me know because I really want to know the answer too”. Response was particularly shocking to me because huge separation I had given religion and education in my mind. To me until that moment, religion and education were vastly different ideas with no compatibility. However, now they have become one part of the same coin.

As defined by Webster dictionary, religion is a set of beliefs concerning cause, nature, and purpose of the universe, while science is the systematic knowledge of the physical or material world gained through observation and experimentation. While one attempts to explain the physical world, the other attempts to explain the spiritual world. As you dive deeper and deeper into science or any career, the necessity of God becomes more and more poignant. The understanding that is a greater purpose to our actions than just the superficial deeds that we are currently engaged in becomes extremely important. God is a necessity not a passing fad that can be escaped. In order to better understand the world beyond the physical description of the world by science.

The question, “why?” has not and will never escape my mind. I now just have an answer to rely on when I cannot find an answer. The answer is a God.
